That's right next to a large creek. Hope they keep it clean.

Is there a negative impact with so many homes nearby?

Yikes--Upstream on Lickinghole Creek! What assurances do we have about not polluting the creek? Good question for Ann Malik!

I'm hoping this new company makes some sort of community out reach to introduce themselves. Here's hoping they are going to be great contributors to our community.

I am hoping they have done some impact studies. What kind and how much vehicle traffic it will bring to the area. How they plan to get their trucks to and from the interstate? I am hoping they don't plan on driving lots of poultry trucks through highly residential areas like Crozet. Or Old Trail.

Is this small, organic farm or is it a factory farm? Quite honestly, I find this devastating.

I'm confused about the statement "it's first operation in the US" They have been raising & selling turkeys over in the valley for 2-3 yrs now. Anyone concerned with their farming practices, they have practiced sustainable farming...they are not a Tyson type operation.

i wonder why they are choosing the most expensive county around to put in a factory farm?

Just follow your nose, better on a hot day, and you will find the poultry plucking factory. The nose knows. Also a sudden increase of non citizens in the area to be employed in that poultry plucking factory.

The Blair Park home just next door to the turkey property is probably not too keen about the noise, smell, and traffic.

I am concerned about the smell. It could have a negative impact on local neighborhoods.

We certainly will, once we are up and running we plan to be extremely active members of the community! Right now we are spending all our time on the farm bringing back to life!!!

Just finish up all the post for a new fence keeping all the farm animals off the creek!! That was number one on our priority.

No trucks, we breed, hatch, grow, and produce Holiday Turkeys on farm.

Small, free range, organic farm, what would have been devastating in my opinion is if the farm had been sold and all the subdivision lots sold and cut up. We are preserving the land and the farming heritage Virginia is so well know for.
